Comments:

- Nehemiah started to deal with problems with the people. Many of these problems were caused by usury.
- Usury is when a person lends money to another person and asks to return the money with extremely high-interest rates.
- Nehemiah met with the people and they all agreed to stop it and to help their brethren. We see Nehemiah's leadership in the society.

- Nehemiah's generosity is seen when he is appointed governor and invites many people to sit with him at the same table. A lot of food was prepared daily.
- Sanballat, Tobiah, and Geshem the Arab tried to stop Nehemiah from completing the wall. Nehemiah dealt with them wisely without losing hope in God's support. Nehemiah's faith and dedication led to the rebuilding of the walls in only 52 days.
- Again, there are names of those who returned to Jerusalem mentioned in chapter seven. Church Fathers look at this in a way where those people who believed in God, offered to work and serve, and left their luxurious, lives were worthy to have their names written in the Book of Life.
- Ezra the scribe was still alive and he led the people to read the law and to another spiritual reformation.
